SIR,

I have the honour to state that it has been usual in the Imperial Tables for the State to show totals for what have been called the western division and the eastern division, the former comprising the three districts of Hassan, Kadur and Shimoga, and the latter the remaining five districts and the cities. The idea seems to have been that the western division was malnad country and the eastern division maidan country. I need not say that this does not correspond to the facts. Hassan, Kadur and Shimoga include considerable areas which are maidan and Mysore District contains a considerable area which is really malnad. At the conference of Census Officers held in Delhi in January last, I explained these matters to the Census Commissioner ~~and~~ in discussing the subject of presenting the statistics for natural divisions, and understood him to agree in the view that unless the divisions corresponded to fact there was no need to show figures for them separately and create the impression that conditions over the whole of any area were uniform. I am accordingly not showing totals for eastern and western divisions in the tables for this Census but shall discuss statistics relating to the malnad taluks in all the four districts of Mysore Hassan. Kadur and Shimoga in the report volume.

There is no administrative division of the State into western and eastern and the non-presentation of the totals for these divisions involves no omission of material information. Incidentally some trouble will be saved in compilation and all the tables will become more compact I request therefore that approval of Government might be obtained to the omission of these divisions from the Tables.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant
